

Triumph of the Lead Ring.

[New York Times Sept. 28.]
Within a few months the price of pig lead in this country has advanced about 35 per cent., and it is now so high that orders have been sent to London for between 2,000 and 3,000 tons. Pig lead is to be imported, in spite of a duty of 2 cents pound, which was equivalent last year to an ad valorem rate of 7 1/2 per cent. The following is taken from the metal market report in the Engineering and Mining Journal of yesterday:

"The past week has proved not only that there is a scarcity of this metal, but that it is more like a famine, and prices in consequence have been driven up quite rapidly, not by any speculative manipulations, but simply by the desire of consumers to secure the article. Prices in the West have advanced much more quickly than here; but when it was discovered that several supplies of leaded Eastern ports from the West prices followed very quickly, and now we are on a level where foreign lead can be imported to advantage."

This rise in price has been directly caused by the new Treasury regulations by which the importation of silver lead ores from Mexico was restricted, and it should not be forgotten that the importation of these ores will be wholly prevented by the very high duty imposed on them in the new tariff.

While the carbonate ring was at work on the tariff bill, the owners of the great smelting factory in Kansas, which had reduced these Mexican ores, were completing negotiations for transferring their plant, or a large part of it, to Mexico. A few days ago they received title to a tract of land near San Luis Potosi, where a smelting factory as large as any in this country will be erected. Under a very favorable concession from the Mexican government four more factories of this kind will be built. If these were now in operation we might be importing the pig lead produced by them, instead of the fluxing ores that are needed for the development of many dry ore mines in this country and that are to be exploited for the pecuniary benefit of a small group of men who contributed a large sum to the blocks-of-five in the last days of the Harrison campaign.

To satisfy the demands of this ring action has been taken that has increased the price of pig lead by 35 per cent., driven to another country an industry that has employed a great many American citizens, and established in that other country at the expense of the United States and to the profit of England and Germany an industry heretofore not existing there. But the members of the carbonate ring will be able to get a high price for their fluxing ores, and will make a very good thing of it under the new tariff that is "good for 10 years."

ALL THE NEWS
That is what THE ST. LOUIS CHRONICLE contains, but not a line of word-pudding. It is better than ever, and it has long been recognized as a leader. It has just spent $40,000 for two new lighting presses, stereotyping machines, new type and building improvements. It will propose to spend more. On and after October 11-12 an eight-page Saturday paper for city circulation, and an eight-page Sunday paper for country circulation, will be issued.

FOR
THE ST. LOUIS CHRONICLE is ever alert in the interest of its readers. Are you one of them? If you are not you are liable, unless you reform, to miss many a true News. THE CHRONICLE'S strong point, but it is not weak in literature. Beginning October 11, a great serial novel, by M. J. Mary, will begin. M. J. Mary is a second Victor Hugo, and Paradise Lost is the reigning French sensation. It has been translated for THE CHRONICLE. If you fail to read it you will be sorry.
